About The District

The Lower Wind River Conservation District (LWRCD) is one of 34 in Wyoming and three in Fremont County. The District was formed on June 16, 1969 when the Pavillion and Wind River Conservation Districts merged. Our district encompasses nearly two million acres including the communities of Pavillion, Kinnear, Riverton, Shoshoni, Moneta, Lysite and Lost Cabin. The Midvale Irrigation District (a United States Bureau of Reclamation project) as well as the two privately owned irrigation districts (LeClair and Riverton Valley) operate within the LWRCD. We are the local voice for natural resource conservation matters. We work closely with the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS), and the other two conservation districts in Fremont County.

LWRCD Programs

No-Till Drills

The District has two Great Plains No-Till Drills, a 6ft and a 10ft, that are available for rent to the residents of Fremont County.

Education

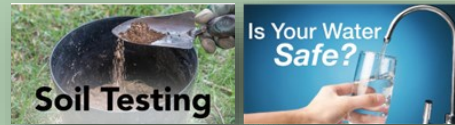

The district provides educational opportunities for constituents in our district about the importance of agriculture in our daily lives and through hands-on activities

We also do a yearly poster contest which is held for school age children K-12th Grade.

Well Water & Soil Testing

We offer Free Well Water and Soil Testing to Residents within our District.

Enhancement Projects

We offer Resource Enhancement and Community Enhancement Cost-Share Programs. We also provide technical assistance to help you be the most effective when planning your project.

Tree & Shrub Sale

The Project is designed to provide low cost seedling trees and shrubs for windbreaks to prevent wind and soil erosion, protect buildings and livestock and reduce energy costs. We also sell weed barrier.
